

Beneficial Uses of Water: Subsistence Fishing, Native American Cultural Use Listening Session & Roundtable

Friday, February 28, 2014

The State Water Resources Control Board (SWRCB) is planning to adopt Subsistence Fishing (FISH) and Native American Cultural Uses (CUL) definitions in the near future. Beneficial uses form the cornerstone of water quality protection under regional Basin Plans. Once they are designated, water quality objectives can be established and water quality programs can be implanted to protect these uses.

This is an opportunity to speak directly with the Chair of the SWRCB, Felicia Marcus. Please join us in this listening session meeting between California Tribes and the State Water Resources Control Board to review proposed definitions and discuss how these Beneficial Uses will be a tool for Tribes to use in watershed protection.

Lunch will be provided. Please RSVP by clicking here or by contacting us.

Paula Britton
Environmental Director
Habematolel Pomo of Upper Lake
(707) 275-0737 ext. 20
epa_director@upperlakepomo.com

Sherri Norris
California Indian
Environmental Alliance
(510) 848-2043
sherri@cieaweb.org

Meeting Information

When: February 28, 2014

Time: 11:00-1:30pm

Where: 635 California 20,
Upper Lake, CA

Event Hosted by Habematolel Pomo of Upper Lake

This is one of two listening sessions. A Southern California meeting will be held 2/21/14. Contact cfooster@naepc.com or sherri@cieaweb.org for more information.

Sacred Places Institute for Indigenous Peoples

